Constance needs her son to survive. He's not sick, he's black.

A heartwarming and playful one woman show which navigates the highs and lows of motherhood in a world where, for some, safety appears to have become a privilege for the few.

Audience feedback:

“That was beautiful! The balance between storytelling and reflection in the narrator’s head is great, and the moral dilemma in the first aid sequence is amazing”

BBC Writers Room: “Tiger Mum ....addresses...racial prejudice, gangs, family relationships and class....with plenty of humanity..”
